We can use chaining as in case of cnic numbers they are linearly assigned for family members. I am using sum and mod method as hashfunction and so i add all the digits after 35202 and take mod by size . in this case chaining can be better as more and more elements can map to same index. Maximum number of collisions can be quite huge as a large number of elements may map to same index